About the exhibition

Open Horizons - Ancient Greek Journeys and Connections tells the story of ideas, influences and connections that form and build communities. Featuring extraordinary collection items from the National Archaeology Museums in Athens, this exhibition will take students on a journey through Ancient Greece exploring how the trade of ideas and goods influenced Greek culture, and in turn influenced the ancient world.

Since antiquity Greeks have a widely shared common geological heritage: The Mediterranean Sea. This exhibition features 44 ancient works that date from the Early Bronze Age to the Roman period representing periods of economic and cultural trade between Greece and its neighbours.
