PANEL

Radical Justice

Embark on a transformative journey with our panel discussion on how every day acts can embody the principles of radical justice. We will lean into the perspectives of these powerhouse women who advocate for multidisciplinary forms of justice including social, political and medical justice and explore the manner in which all these forms of justice are inextricably connected and how radical ideas are necessary to mobilise communities.

Speakers: Dr Randa Abdel-Fattah, Amran Hassan-Ali, Dr Bushra Othman and Nesreen Bottriell

Facilitator: Tasneem Chopra OAM

PANEL

On Bla(c)k Storytelling: Forging Authentic Stories

This dynamic discussion will tackle how, through the mediums of film, story-telling and education, our panellists forge authentic representations of the Black voice. These changemakers will unpack the importance of resistance and representation through art and the necessity of centering their communities in their own practices. Together, we will explore how story-telling is an ancient art deeply rooted in Black culture and how it is essential in re-imagining their own perspectives and communities from places of power and self-determination.

Speakers: Miski Omar, Shemsiya Waritu, Samira Farah

Facilitator: Safiah Rind

Q&A

Shattering the Silence

PANEL

For too long, Muslim women have faced the 'double bind' of having to disprove Islamophobic notions of women's oppression by men, while challenging patriarchal beliefs in their own communities. This panel will explore the weaponisation of religion to legitimise violence against women and family violence, draw on the importance of ensuring religious institutions focused on community education actively enable cultural change and faith as 'a protective factor'.

Speakers: Amani Haydar, Hana Assafiri, Dr Naba Alfayadh, Samia Baho OAM

Facilitator: Tasneem Chopra OAM

Ask A Big Sis

These women collectively hold a wealth of information for their age. Come along to this open panel where you can ask these young leaders all your deepest questions (anonymously or openly) whether it's about fighting stereotypes at the Olympics, being visibly Muslim in the media or the challenges young Muslim women face in the public spotlight. Direct from the source - get your answers now.

Speakers: Tina Rahimi, Amal Wehbe, Soaliha Iqbal, Nawal Sari, Sowaibah Hanifie

Facilitator: Sarah Baarini

IN-CONVERSATION

The (In)visible Advocate

This riveting and robust conversation will explore how Muslim women are churned in and out of the political machine. Senator Fatima Payman and journalist Soaliha Iqbal will bring to the forefront how corporations, political parties and organisations want visibly Muslim women to be at the centre of their diversity campaigns, but then they are the first to get cut if they step a toe out of line or simply act in accordance with their beliefs or values.

Speakers: Senator Fatima Payman and Soaliha Iqbal

Q&A

PANEL

Beyond the Pyre: Shame and Success in the Age of Influence

In this fiery discourse, we confront the lateral violence and online witch-hunting of Muslim women, who are often held to unattainable expectations, facing death threats and shaming when they dare to be visible and successful online. Our panellists through their varied experiences will touch on the responsibilities and burdens of muslim females of influence, maintaining healthy digital hygiene and as we dissect the complexities of shame and fame within the context of oppressive double standards.

Speakers: Nawal Sari, Salsa Aldabel, Basra Ajeh, Kauthar Abdulalim

Facilitator: Zulfiye Tufa

PANEL

Radical Representation

In the last few years, we have ushered in the era of firsts such as the first hijabi Australian Muslim woman to represent at the Olympics or in the Senate. Hear from these trailblazers as they share their uncharted journeys and the joys and challenges they encountered along the way.

Speakers: Tina Rahimi, Inty Elham, Senator Fatima Payman, Tasnim Hossain, Samira Farah

Facilitator: Sowaibah Hanifie

Sunday

Q&A

Q&A with Yassmin Abdel-Magied (appearing via Zoom)

Yassmin Abdel-Magied is a Sudanese diaspora writer, broadcaster and award-winning social advocate. The former engineer has published five books and her writing has appeared in leading news platforms including Observer Magazine, TIME, the New York Times and Vogue. Yassmin will zoom in live from the UK and the session will be facilitated by Dandenong's Young Leader of the Year, Danya Daoud. Bring your biggest questions to this enlightening Q&A session and get ready to lean into Yassmin's incredible perspectives.

Facilitator: Danya Daoud

LIVE PODCAST
RECORDING SESSION

Just Delusional

Join Nawal for a live recording of her popular podcast, Just Delusional, where she talks about her journey through social media, navigating her 20's, things she is loving and hating and occasionally gives advice that can be useful (kinda).

Nawal Sari is a fashion and beauty influencer based in Sydney, Australia. She uses her platform to not only express personal style but to further conversation on culture, diversity, humanitarian causes and normalising modest fashion in the mainstream world.

Speakers: Nawal Sari

Q&A

PANEL

Not Your Business

This panel will deep-dive into the way we do business - whether we are in the business of raising children, innovating technology, the business of building wealth and being sustainable, from side hustles, small businesses to women in business of helping others transform. We will hear their stories of success and the challenges along the way. The panel will also explore how Muslim women in business can apply Islamic practices within a capitalist system and explore alternative methods of economic organisation that allow the financial autonomy of Muslim women.

Speakers: Priyanka Ashraf, Asia Hassan, Eman Serhan and Dr Sultana Lubna Alam

Facilitator: Mariam Mohammed

PANEL

Radical Unity

This enlightening panel discussion will seek to confront the issue of sectarianism within the Muslim community. Together, we'll explore strategies to overcome divides and foster a sense of solidarity that transcends sectarian lines. Through candid conversations and shared experiences steeped in Islamic principles, we'll uncover how internal divisions hinder our collective ability to unite and advocate for common goals.

Speakers: Naz Sharifi, Hajeh Maha Abdo OAM, Ramila Chanisheff

Facilitator: Hawraa Kash

PANEL

On the Medical Front Lines

Whether it is being on the front lines during a genocide, advocating against racism, taking the stand or developing health resources for migrant communities, these doctors will share their compelling stories of strength that extend beyond a duty of care and into compassion.

Speakers: Dr Naba Alfayad, Dr UMBER Rind, Dr Amireh Fakhouri and Dr Bushra Alfayadh

Facilitator: Dr Mariam Tokhi

Q&A

PANEL

Struggling With Sisterhood: Connection in the Digital Age

In a world bombarding us with messages of hyper-individuality, navigating sisterhood in 2024 is not an easy ask! How do you make new friends and keep existing ones in a world that prioritises digital communication? How do you deal with the fallout when a friendship comes to a heartbreaking end? This panel will shed light on the challenges we all face in balancing self-care with the need to create, maintain and sustain real connections with our sisters.

Speakers: Zebunissa Khan, Rana Hussain, Adriana Ridzwan, Haneen Mahmood Martin

Facilitator: Eman Mourad

PANEL

Radical Realisations

In this enlightening dialogue, we'll delve into the transformative power of Islam, exploring how it can empower us to embrace our beliefs unapologetically - whether that is praying publicly in a park or explaining to your boss the lunar calendar for Eid. This panel of proud Muslim women, some of them reverts, will candidly discuss how faith can provide a profound sense of purpose and direction, without romanticising their own journeys.

Speakers: Meg Sowersby, Ruhee Meghani, Angelica-Hazel Toutounji

Facilitator: Dr Eugenia Flynn

IN-CONVERSATION

The Cost of Free Speech

Muslim Women of Colour routinely pay the price for speaking their community's truths; from online and workplace bullying to demeaning media headlines. Senator Mehreen Faruqi and Sara Saleh will unpack their experiences and the important lessons they have learnt in the last 12 months.

Speakers: Senator Mehreen Faruqi and Sara Saleh

PANEL

The Write Side of History

This thought-provoking discussion will delve into the intricate ways language has been wielded to dehumanise marginalised communities. We will explore the profound impact of media narratives in shaping perceptions and how certain linguistic constructs perpetuate stereotypes and strip the humanity of those affected. From the demonisation of statements of solidarity to the wording used to describe the systematic murder of Brown and Black bodies, the verbiage to describe violence against women and the way language is co-opted, this panel will dissect the subtle yet powerful ways in which language shapes our understanding of the personal and the global.

Speakers: Dr Susan Carland, Dr Nora Amath, Samah Sabawi, Lamisse Hamouda

Facilitator: Haneen Mahmood Martin
